German Expert Asserts U.S. Naval Patrol War-Like Act

BERLIN, June 14.—Writing in the weekly publication "Reich," Rear Admiral Luetzow, famous German naval expert, stated today that the United States naval patrol in the Atlantic ocean represents an "active, war-like act on behalf of Germany's enemies."

Publication of the article followed yesterday's German charge that the sunken American steamer Robin Moor was carrying contraband and a renewed warning that German sea and air forces will continue to destroy war cargoes consigned to British ports, regardless of their origin.

Rear Admiral Luetzow's article dealt with the question of "what will happen when a German auxiliary cruiser meets American patrol ships."

He charged that American quarters are well aware that the American naval patrol is "incompatible" with the duties imposed upon a neutral nation by international law.

New Castle honors the flag today. From homes and stores and factories the Stars and Stripes are flying but New Castle does more than merely hang out the flag today, it marks the 164th birthday of Old Glory with a huge parade and a mass meeting tonight in the Cathedral.

The parade was scheduled to leave from the Legion Home on North Jefferson street at three-thirty o'clock and move over North street to Croton avenue, thence to Washington street and down to the public square. On Jefferson street just off Washington, the reviewing stand was located. National President William T. Kerr of the American Flag Day Association, Mrs. W. W. Campbell, regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution Lt. Col. W. Fulton Jackson and city council and others were to review the marchers.

Meeting At 8:15
At eight-fifteen tonight a mass meeting will be held in the Cathedral auditorium. William T. Kerr will address this meeting as will Secretary of Internal Affairs William S. Livengood of Harrisburg. Mr. and Mrs. Kerr arrived in New Castle Friday night and Mr. Livengood early today.

The Flag Day observance today is sponsored by the Lawrence chapter. Daughters of the American Revolution. Joining in the celebration are civic, patriotic, and fraternal organizations, men and women of a score of different nationalistic origins, men and women of all creeds, all of them united by the desire to honor the flag.

Traffic in the downtown section will likely be impeded late this afternoon due to the parade but at least the tie-up will be in a good cause. The police force has every available man out on traffic duty and with a few understandable jams were handling the problem well.

NAZI RAIDERS IN
ATTACK ON BRITAIN

(BULLETIN)
(International News Service)
LONDON, June 14.—Hundreds of British planes last night spread destruction through the Ruhr industrial district for the third successive night, three Nazi warships were reported blasted at Brest, and today government officials said six German supply ships were sunk on transatlantic shipping lanes.

(International News Service)
LONDON, June 14.—R.A.F. bombers last night and early today carried out a third successive heavy raid on Germany's industrial Ruhr district and also attacked invasion ports along the German-occupied French coast.

British quarters said heavy damage had been done in the industrial districts of Schwerte and the Ruhr and that strong forces of R.A.F. bombers dropped many bombs on the docks of Brest.

These new attacks followed up the previous night's lashing assault on the docks of Brest.

(International News Service)
LONDON, June 14.—Official British quarters confirmed today that Vichy troops have been evacuated from Kiswe, about 10 miles south of the Syrian capital of Damascus.

British military circles said Vichy troops are now holding positions across a road a few miles from Damascus, while on the central sector of the front the British are holding the town of Nabatieh, closely supported by the R. A. F.

Contact was stated to have been made with Vichy transport units north of Merj Ayoun and British forces have encountered opposition near Sidon.

WITH FREE FRENCH TROOPS, on the road to Damascus, in Syria, June 14.—This is a swiftly moving fight.

Up to today it has been more a battle of maneuver than of intensive fighting. As a result there have been very few casualties.

A general at whose field headquarters I spent the afternoon told me his men were each worth three of the Vichy soldiers because of the difference in morale.

He declared his own troops were fighting for a cause while "theirs are merely carrying out orders."

He is a fighting general who stays right at the front most of the time. He has had several narrow escapes from bombs and shells during the last two days.

Strafing Planes Active
This particular section of the front is a bad place to be attacked by strafing planes. There is not a tree in sight in any direction and no shelter.

When the Vichy planes come tearing down for you, all you can do is jump out of your car and run to a boulder-strewn field, flop and hope for the best.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Germany's defiant attitude toward the sinking of the American merchantman Robin Moor in the South Atlantic caused considerable concern in state department quarters today.

American officials who are handling the case were both puzzled and dismayed by the provocative nature of the Berlin statements, especially the implied threats that any other American ship caught carrying contraband is likely to be sunk in the same manner as the Robin Moor.

This attitude on the part of Berlin was seen in official quarters as constituting a virtual challenge to President Roosevelt's recent reassertion of the American doctrine of freedom of the seas.

Unlawful Action
In view of the unlawful nature of the German submarine commander's action in setting the 46 passengers and crew of the Robin Moor adrift in the South Atlantic without providing for their safety, it was thought Berlin would at least try to pacify the United States by describing the incident as a mistake.

This was the procedure followed by the imperial German government during the early stages of the first world war when American ships were attacked or sunk. Germany at that time sought to smooth over each incident. It described the various attacks on American ships as "unfortunate accidents" and offered full compensation in almost every case.

The attitude of the present German government appeared to officials here to be quite the contrary and in complete conflict with the previous indications that the Nazis (Continued On Page Two)

There was no immediate details as to the destination of the fleet or the direction it took in steaming from Toulon.

Editor's note: Three major possibilities were suggested by the Vichy report—one, that the fleet has gone to the defense of Syria; second, that it has steamed out to defend French merchant ships against British search and seizure, and third, that it is destined for some collaborative action with the German machine.)

Governor Proclaims Second Registration Day In State, July 1

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, June 14.—Gov. Arthur H. James, in support of President Roosevelt's action today proclaimed July 1 as the second registration day for selective service.

On that day, approximately 65,000 men who have reached the age of 21 years since last October 16, except those deferred by law, are required to register for military service at registration boards in Pennsylvania.

The essential difference in "M-Day" this year will be the use of Pennsylvania's 422 local draft boards in conducting the registration. Special boards were set up when the first draft was conducted.

In addition to his proclamation the governor called upon employers to permit employees to leave their place of business in order to register and asked prospective registrants to familiarize themselves with the selective service and training act of 1940.

French Ambassador In U. S. May Seek Recall

CAIRO, June 14.—German aerial intervention in the Syrian hostilities was indicated today in an official Cairo communique which stated three Nazi junkers dive bombers were shot down yesterday afternoon.

Several other junkers planes were said to have been damaged in air combats with Australian planes over the extreme eastern Mediterranean.

The battles were precipitated when Australian fighter squadrons intercepted two forces of junkers bombers, including aircraft with Italian markings, that attempted to attack British warships supporting the drive against the Lebanese port of Sidon.

(Editor's Note: A British military spokesman at Jerusalem declared that British and Free French troops, with the cooperation of the British navy, were entering the outskirts of Sidon. He said the Allied forces in other sectors were progressing and that the number of Vichy surrenders was increasing.)

Reports received at Vichy from Beirut admitted Australian forces had made a slight advance along the Lebanese coast with the aid of a violent naval bombardment. The Vichy news agency stated Canadian troops captured a Vichy military post north of Merj Ayoun, where the Allies have increased their pressure.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—The New Deal's furious undercover factional contest over President Roosevelt's choice of a new attorney general widened today as friends advanced the name of Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt, of Indiana, for the cabinet post.

A drive by the Frankfurter-Harvard faction of the New Deal to secure the promotion of Solicitor General Francis Biddle, of Pennsylvania, already has been challenged by other administration groups. One faction is supporting Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia, of New York, and a third seeks the post for Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, of Connecticut.

Violence Develops In Truck Strike

Fire Destroys Stolen Truck

Two Minor Fires Are Also Reported At Another Transfer Company

STILL NEGOTIATE TO SETTLE STRIKE

(International News Service) PITTSBURGH, June 14.—Pittsburgh's deadlocked motor transportation strike took on another tinge of violence today as unidentified persons burned one truck and unsuccessfully attempted to burn another and an employer's garage.

Fire destroyed one truck, allegedly stolen from a lot where it had been parked since the strike began 14 days ago. Owned by the Eclipse Motor Lines, Inc., of Pittsburgh, the one and a half-ton vehicle was burned under the Liberty bridge, near East Carson street.

Meanwhile, the police bomb and arson squad swung into action after two minor fires were reported at the Tobin Transfer company. A watchman, attracted by smoke seeping from a truck parked outside the garage, said he discovered a burning oil-soaked rag inside the machine. Half an hour later, the same watchman discovered a blaze inside the building at the rear, where a burning flag had been tossed through a window.

Joint conferences between the AFL-Teamsters union which called the strike to support demands for a flat 10-cent hourly increase, and the Western Pennsylvania Labor Relations association, representing the 179 operators involved, were scheduled to resume this afternoon.

a close call, but another American, Bob Low, and an Australian, Ronnie Monson, almost got theirs.

Six Vichy aircraft went for them, peeling off one at a time and diving within 50 feet as they machine-gunned and dropped light "personnel bombs."

The party on the ground jumped from their car, scattered and flopped.

One bomb dropped within five yards of Low, one smashed the front of their car and a machine-gun bullet drilled into the shoulder of a nearby soldier, who was next to Monson.

Low was dripping with perspiration when I found him.

"Boy, I sure thought I was going to be it this time. They were within 50 feet of us," he said.

BERLIN'S ATTITUDE ON SHIP SINKING CAUSES CONCERN

were eager to do everything possible to avoid precipitating American entry into the war.

Amazement Expressed

One high official of the government expressed amazement at what he described as the stupidity of German psychology. The view prevailed in official quarters that Berlin's defiant attitude would leave this government little alternative but to stiffen its own stand concerning the lawlessness of the German move and the necessity for adequate measures to protect American shipping on the high seas.

This government, one official spokesman said, will never concede that Germany has any right to sink an American vessel on the high seas, irrespective of whether it may be carrying goods which the belligerent powers have arbitrarily listed as conditional contraband. To do so, it was said, would represent a renunciation by this country of its traditional freedom of the seas policy.

As soon as President Roosevelt receives a full report on the sinking of the Robin Moor next week, state department experts expect to start drafting a blistering diplomatic protest to Germany, demanding full reparations for the loss of the ship and the 35 passengers and crew who are missing.

were striving to effect a bloodless surrender of the city.

(The exchange telegraph [British] news agency quoted the Ankara radio as stating civilian evacuation of Damascus had been ordered, which would indicate that proposals for surrender of the city had been rejected.)

Earlier the Cairo radio announced destruction of seven Axis dive bombers, but this later was corrected to say only three had been shot down and several others damaged. The bombers had aimed two attacks at British naval vessels off the Lebanese coast. There was no indication whether the naval vessels had been hit.

The Allied column at the gates of Damascus was understood to have surrounded the ancient capital on all sides but the north. Fighting apparently was held in abeyance while the commander of the British column appealed to the French to surrender without further fighting.

He stated that comparisons have proven that the planes made by the United States are far and above the best in the world, and by the use of slides, showed where this superiority lies, and pictured many other devices recently perfected to augment this superiority.

Deplores Subversive Activities

In concluding, he deplored the subversive activities which have been going on in this country and expressed the hope that an inflamed public opinion will soon clear this up.

Mr. Colwell was introduced by Commander-in-Chief Ill. John E. Elliott, who also introduced Paul W. Keely, the president of the spring reunion class, which just received its degrees, and H. schools, colleges and universities that may be open on that day and the shutting down of all establishments dispensing beer and liquor.

Pennsylvania, which has more selective service registrants under the jurisdiction of its state headquarters than has the single headquarters of any other state, always has risen to the forefront in meeting its patriotic responsibilities," the governor stated. "It is my firm knowledge that our people will display their famed voluntary helpfulness and cooperation on second registration day."

Dr. William Mather Lewis, state draft director, anticipated on difficulty on the part of local boards in handling the new registrations.

Boards To Handle Work

While various organizations not a part of the selective service system helped in the first registration on October 16, 1940, Dr. Lewis pointed out that a much smaller number will register this time.

"The majority of young men affected," he said, "will be registered at the local board offices in the community in which they live." However, other buildings may be used if local board headquarters are not suitably located, he said.

"Registration will be conducted between the hours of 7 a. m. and 9 p. m., on July 1," Dr. Lewis pointed out. "If a man who is subject to registration is away from his community on registration day, and returning to his home would be a hardship, he may register at any local board office," the state director said.

the Ruhr, the heaviest raid yet inflicted on that area by British planes.

Nazi Raiders Attack

While the R.A.F. planes dropped huge bombs on German targets, Luftwaffe raiders attacking in waves crossed the English coast at several points and delivered sustained assault on a southeast inland area.

Heavy anti-aircraft fire met the raiders, who dropped bombs that shook the countryside for miles. Six German raiders were shot down.

The Nazi-held French port of Brest bore the brunt of the British attack on the coast. This was because the German battleship Bismarck, accompanied by the battleship Bismarck on its ill-fated voyage, is still taking refuge there with the Battle Cruisers Gneisenau and Scharnhorst.

The British night raid on the Ruhr area was believed virtually as heavy as the shattering attack of the previous night.

Stories Of Survivors Of Robin Moor Will Be Rushed To U. S.

Photographic And Written Records Of Sinking To Be Flown To Washington

(International News Service)

RECIFE, Brazil, June 14.—Photographic and written records of the sinking of the American freighter Robin Moor were scheduled to be flown to Washington today by Philip E. Williams, third secretary of the United States Embassy at Rio de Janeiro.

Eleven survivors of the sunken vessel who were picked up and brought into Recife by the Brazilian steamer Osorio told harrowing stories of the ordeal which followed the sinking of the vessel by a German U-boat. There were some few variations as to the exact circumstances of the sinking but all agreed that the vessel was torpedoed some 20 to 25 minutes after she was abandoned by her eight passengers and her crew.

Two surviving crew members, Engineers Karl Nilson and Virgil Sanderlin, said the vessel was carrying 1,000 tons of steel and motor cars when she was sunk.

Antonio Santos, the vessel's Portuguese cook, quoted the German U-boat commander as saying to the Robin Moor's captain: "I feel sorry for you but your ship is carrying war material to the enemy."

Editor's note: The state department thus far has taken no official cognizance of German charges that the Robin Moor carried war materials. However, the ship's manifest, made public in New York late yesterday, said the sole "munitions" aboard the vessel consisted of a case of one-dozen, 22 caliber rifles and 141 cases of shotgun shells.

All survivors agreed that the action of the submarine was so swift that it allowed no time for consideration of the objections of the Robin Moor's captain.

Four lifeboats launched from the Robin Moor clung together for five days of relative calm weather. Then the seas began running high, heavy rains fell and the boats separated.

to deliver France politically, economically, socially and militarily to Hitler."

Ambassador's Reply

Henri-Haye retorted in a formal statement that the French leaders, "who are devoting themselves to bringing about the resurrection of France," "known better than anyone else where their duty lies."

"The people of France," he added, "following the course decided upon by the government of Marshal Petain, Frenchmen stand united behind the leader."

Hull asserted the Vichy government was compelling Frenchmen to fight Germany's battle in Syria.

"From the standpoint of the French people, and others who have a love for freedom, and have freedom of the attitude of the present government of Vichy is a matter of the deepest disappointment and sorrow," Hull said.

Warning that the adoption of Hitlerism "would set the world back five to ten centuries," Hull said the facts concerning the Vichy government's actions "unmistakably demonstrate that the German military effort is making use of France and that the German initiative in Syria is resulting in a conflict not only of France against Britain but of Frenchmen against Frenchmen."

Doing Germany's Fighting

"Germany," Hull said, "seems to have prevailed on the Vichy government to do Germany's fighting in the Syria area of the general German advance."

In his diplomatic quarters in Washington viewed as a virtual appeal to the French people to overthrow the Vichy government, Hull added:

"It remains to be seen whether the French people accept this preposterous status and thus pave the way for them to find themselves assisting Hitler as his co-belligerents in his desperate effort to conquer Great Britain and secure control of the high seas."

"In the prevention of such a possibility, both the French people and the people of the United States have a common interest of tremendous importance to the future."

Jimmy Elias Off For Marbles Meet

City Champion, With Hopes High, Goes To Hershey Elimination

James Elias, New Castle's newly crowned 1941 marbles champion, left today in the company of Clevelanders for the Northern District Marbles Tournament finals at Hershey Park, Pa., June 15 through 19.

In the Hershey meet he competes with the cream of players from all over this section of the east. Victory for him there makes him eligible for the national finals later at Wildwood, N. J.

A week ago yesterday Jimmy outplayed other school champs and their runners-up and thereby established his right to the four-day tournament trip. He also won a silver cup.

Sponsors of the tournament, The Townsman, young men's civic club arranged the Hershey trip for Elias. The Ohio group which is escorting him represent the national tournament sponsors.

Arthur Zarone, of St. Joseph's school, runner-up to Elias in the city finals, was given a wrist watch, and all school champs won fitting recognition.

What day Elias, who represented Lincoln-Garfield school, will play at Hershey Park was not known by the Cleveland escort party here today.

War Department Would Curtail Output Of Autos

Asks O. P. M. For Additional Decrease In Production Of Autos In Year

(International News Service) WASHINGTON, June 14.—The war department today awaited reply to its request from the office of production management for an additional reduction in automobile production to free materials, manpower and management for increased production of airplanes, tanks, and implements of war.

The request for further curtailment, made by Undersecretary of War Patterson in a letter to William S. Knudsen, director general of O. P. M., was reported to have asked for an additional 30 per cent reduction.

The first request called for a reduction of 20 per cent of the normal output of 1942 models, effective August 1 on new models.

Knudsen declined to make the contents of the letter public, and it was not known whether he had given a definite reply to Patterson. There was no public announcement of the estimated amount of materials, or manpower that the additional reduction would make available for defense purposes.

CELEBRATION OF FLAG DAY

CELEBRATION of Flag Day turns our scattered, busy thoughts to our duties as citizens of the greatest nation in the world.

Commemorating the adoption of our flag reviews those great events of history which created the need for it. The greatest of these have marked the way of progress toward liberty and achievements of democratic ideals.

In ancient times when wars were fought in hand-to-hand contest by men on foot using crude weapons, standards were used to keep battle lines straight. The standards advanced or fell back as fortunes varied. Thus tall and valorous men were chosen to bear the standards that they might keep them always in view and on the out-boards of victorious progress.

Our flag means not less today. It means vastly more since its symbolism prevails in spheres of influence more worthy, more sacred than could have been understood by those whose standards advanced only by conquest.

Our flag is our standard in the advance of our nation toward the ideals conceived by the founders of our republic. High and fine were those ideals. The message of Flag Day is to keep high the standard and straight the line.

May it appeal to the keen enthusiasm of youth as worthy, that each shall aspire to be a standard bearer, a defender of the flag and in the advance guard pressing forward toward our nation's glorious destiny.

NON-DEFENSE SPENDING

Consideration of House Bill 4590 was on before the Senate the other day. For the information of those who may not recognize the bill by its number, it carries the appropriations for the Department of the Interior. As reported by the Senate Appropriations Committee, the total was $185,119,000, approximately $8,000,000 more than the House had voted and $29,500,000 more than the sum appropriated last year.

Here are some of the committee's recommended increases:
Office of the secretary, Petroleum Conservation Division, from $40,000 to $255,000; Bituminous Coal Division, from $3,029,000 to $3,250,000; General Land Office, from $154,600 to $170,000; Bureau of Indian Affairs, from $564,090 to $585,370; equipment, from $255,340 to $270,000; improvements, from $85,000 to $130,000; industrial assistance and advancement, from $698,000 to $710,000; irrigation and drainage, from $300,000 to $560,000; Wind River, from $10,000 to $40,000; salaries and expenses, Fish and Wild Life Service, from $5,291,175 to $5,582,200; Bonneville Power Administration, from $22,858,000 to $22,988,500.

That $130,000 increase in the last-mentioned item is for what—one guess? It is to provide ways and means to establish "broader permanent markets for Bonneville-Grand Coulee power through utilization of the latest unused resources of the Pacific Northwest, largely submetalurgical minerals occurring in complex structures." That, at least, is what Senator Holman, Republican of Oregon, a member of the appropriations committee, told the Senate. More specifically, that $130,000 is to employ technical help to "study and aid in translating to private industry the economics of operating in the Pacific Northwest," the studies to include charcoal making and mining.

Voting of the increases shows how much attention the Senate is giving to the demand from the public for the reduction of non-defense expenditures. And, incidentally, to revert to the Holman proposal, isn't it in order to ask why there is a Bureau of Mines at Washington.

SINKING OF THE ROBIN MOOR

The sinking of the American vessel Robin Moor becomes a matter of grave concern to our government with receipt of the preliminary report from Consul Lithium in Pernambuco, Brazil, that the act was "undoubtedly" perpetrated by a German submarine.

This statement is based on testimony of the eleven survivors. The consul reports that "the commander of the submarine was fully aware that the vessel was American." When the ship left New York it bore the usual conspicuous and unmistakable signs proclaiming its nationality, in addition, of course, to flying the American flag.

According to Mr. Welles, Under-Secretary of State, the vessel's cargo contained no implements of warfare or other materials inconsistent with the Neutrality Act. It is especially disturbing that the Robin Moor should have met this fate in the South Atlantic, midway between Brazil and West Africa, and remote from the combat zones as defined by President Roosevelt.

The activity of a German submarine in that vicinity indicates that it operated from a base on the west coast of Africa. In this connection Dakar, reportedly swarming with German submarines, immediately springs to mind.

These waters, far distant from hostilities or any proclaimed German blockade, should be safe for neutral vessels bound on legitimate commercial errands. The extreme procedure permitted by the rules of civilized warfare is seizure and search of suspected merchant vessels and removal of passengers and crew to a place of safety. But there have been too many instances of Nazi frightfulness to suggest that any confidence can be put in the protection of what was once international law.

If submarine warfare is being extended to American unarmed ships, pursuing their peaceful missions where they have a perfect right to operate, the duty of our government is clear. It is to make protest in terms so strong as to admit of no misunderstanding.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

SPANKING ONLY FOR SMALL CHILD

A mother who wrote to commend me for my advocating selective spanking says she fears that some parents might suppose they have any approval for spanking when they feel like it, even for whipping the older child.

They have not. Any person who has read this daily column regularly, read my books to parents, or studied in my university classes for parents knows that I constantly emphasize the following rules: There is no occasion for spanking the baby at all until he begins to move about and face danger.

Before this time his control should consist of the parent's self-control. Let the wise mother train herself in the meaning of NO so that she will not allow the baby to have his way by crying for it. She will let him cry it out, but she will never spank him for crying. Neither will the father.

Meaning Of No
Let both parents agree upon the few situations in which they will always spank and those in which they will never spank.

Make pleasant what you want the child to do and painful only what you want him never to do. Spank only to prevent, only to keep the child from certain acts and to teach him the meaning of NO.

Therefore, don't spank the child to get him to do what you want him to do as: to come to you, to close the door, to pick up the toy, to please or thank you, or to eat his spinach.

Immediate Punishment
Don't spank at all unless it always can follow immediately the forbidden act, so the child will surely connect this act with the pain and learn to avoid it thereafter.

Permit no exception. What you once spank for you will spank for when repeated.

Since, to be effective, you must spank immediately and without exception, followed the forbidden act, you will not spank for certain acts at all, like nail-biting, nose-picking, or thumb-sucking.

No use to punish for the many new situations which are not likely to arise again. Merely divert the child or intercept him then.

Solving Parent Problems
Q: "Are there good books to aid parent in answering the child's questions about the facts of life?"
A: Yes, let me send you a list of such. Just write me at 235 East 45th street, New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.Q: My daughter, in the fourth grade, having a hard time with her spelling.
A: Write me at 235 East 45th street, N. Y. City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp, and let me send you "Home Helps for the Poor Speller."

Roosevelt Scoffs At German Propaganda
Cudahy Criticized For Hitler Utterance
New World Nations Don't Want Germanized

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, June 14. John Cudahy, formerly our ambassador in Belgium, has come in for some pretty severe criticism as a sequel to publication of an interview he had with Herr Hitler, in the course of which the Fuehrer scoffed at the notion that he had the slightest idea of ever invading the western hemisphere.

President Roosevelt, for one, referred to such stories, as well as the one to the effect that John G. Winant, our ambassador to London, recently visited here to tell him that Britain all in, and to submit a peace proposition from John Bull, as "plain Nazi propaganda, ordered by Berlin." Not, the president added, that he had any objection to stuff like the Cudahy interview, provided it appears in print to the accompaniment of an editorial similar to the one the New York Times did run in connection with the Cudahy spiel, pointing out that Adolf isn't to be believed under oath.

Nevertheless the adverse critics generally appear to imply that John was giving currency to Nazi propaganda. This doesn't seem to me to be quite fair to the ex-ambassador. He undoubtedly had the interview he says he had and presumably he reported it correctly. He didn't undertake to guarantee that Adolf was telling him the truth. All he did was to record what was said to him, leaving his readers to take it for whatever they consider it worth.

It was interesting, too, though regarded wholly as a sample of the quality of plain and fancy lying Adolf's capable of.

It's true that John Cudahy didn't specifically state, "Of course, the Fuehrer was lying," but I suppose he would be enlightened enough to draw their own conclusions.

Some Plausibility
There's a certain plausibility about Adolf's contention that it would be a manifest impossibility for him to ship an enormous army to this side of the Atlantic to conquer the entire collection of the Americas and run 'em permanent directly from overseas.

The presumption is, however, that his plan will be to saturate 'em Germany on their own insides, first economically and then politically by getting a lot of their native but pro-German Quislings and Lavals into control of their various governments. It hardly seems as if he ever could accomplish this in the United States or Canada, but the New World republics south of us might be more susceptible.

Right now these countries don't want to be Germanized. They have some dictators in their various midsts, and a few of 'em are decidedly anti-German, but they prefer to do their own dictating not to have it done for 'em from Berlin.

There was a strong hint at this frame of mind the other day, when Argentina issued invitations to military men from six of its nearest neighbors, Uruguay, Paraguay, Brazil, Bolivia, Chile and Peru, to visit the Argentine in July to unite on preparations for mutual defense.

Mexico, Venezuela, Colombia, Ecuador and the Central and Insular American republics weren't included, probably because they're too distant. But, and this is significant, the United States was included. Now, of all the Pan-American countries Argentina has been clamorous heretofore toward western hemispherical collaboration with Uncle Sam. If THAT republics coming cordially into line, it means a lot.

German Agents Busy
One thing it evidently means is that German agents must be busy enough in the land for the Argentine government to have noticed it and to have taken alarm.

Not long ago President Vargas of Brazil suppressed an uprising in the big German colony in his southern state of Rio Grande do Sul. Chile's had trouble with Nazi fifth columnists in Santiago. Uruguay's deal with 'em severely at Montevideo.

It's not to know that these folk are resisting being Nazi-fied, but if Nazi-fication weren't being attempted, they wouldn't have to be resisting it. So it does look as if Herr Hitler may have been lying to John Cudahy when he said he'd no western hemispherical ambitions, since it's so evident that he's trying to realize said ambitions right now.

What Adolf will attempt is obvious. He'll endeavor to find a dependable Latin American Quisling and there back him up in a blitz revolution and horn into control without a mass invasion, all at once.

The Answer Is "No"
WASHINGTON, June 14. ARE we doing everything possible to put our country in the best defensive position at the earliest possible time? Are we giving to Britain the sort of all-out aid which the President promised? In view of the unlimited-emergency proclamation, those questions are certainly pertinent and proper.

The answer to each is an unequivocal and indisputable "no." Hardly anyone will contend otherwise. It is probable the President himself would not do so, because, of course, no one is in position to know the facts as well as he. The truth is that we not only are not doing all that is possible, but we are coming nowhere near doing so. True, 100 per cent is too much to expect, but to fail as far short as we are failing is without excuse.

EVIDENCE of it is on every side. It is a matter of common knowledge. It is to be found in the 2,000,000 and more man-days lost in strikes and in the 60 and more strikes still in progress on army and navy work. It is to be found in the shocking waste involved in the construction of the camps. It is to be found in the refusal to adopt the only feasible way by which prices can be controlled. It is to be found in the failure to evolve a sound taxation program or to prevent non-defense governmental expenditures from inexorably rising.

PARTICULARLY, it is to be found in the headless defense organization, which, through lack of judgment and experience, is making some pretty costly blunders. An example is the recent proposal of the O. P. M. to increase the steel production of (Continued On Next Page)

The Great Game Of Politics

the country by ten million tons. Instead of accelerating our defense effort, that will retard it. At least, such is the view of experienced and disinterested men informed as to the situation.

THE chief point they make is that, while it is true there is not enough steel for both defense purposes and civilian wants, there is ample steel for war purposes and civilian necessities. They sharply distinguish between what civilian business would like to have and what it can get along with. There is need for more steel, they contend, if we are going to operate on the "business as usual" plan, but if we are going to measure up to the unlimited-emergency proclamation, then business as usual becomes absurd and there is no excuse for it.

REPORTS to the President by Mr. Gano Dunn, special consultant, show that the grand total of army, navy, maritime and other military requirements, plus all aid to the British, will require less than 25 per cent of our existing steel capacity. Hence, the new expansion must be designed primarily for civilian rather than defense purposes. It is suggested that the whole steel problem can be solved by curtailing the production of non-war material and giving the defense program right of way, and that the best place to curtail it is in automobile production. Approximately eleven million tons of ingot steel were used in automobile construction last year. If this were cut 50 per cent it would not materially affect the public, as there are millions of good second-hand cars available, and it would release the automobile plants for needed defense work.

Clearly, this curtailment would obviate the necessity for more steel. The trouble is that, while the administration has said that "business as usual" must be abandoned, it has done nothing to put that idea into effect except talk. No one in the defense organization cares about exercising the power or taking the responsibility for ordering a 50 per cent reduction in an industry as great as the automobile industry. Instead, they propose to let "business as usual" continue by ordering an expansion of 10,000,000 tons of steel, although the reasons that make this proposed expansion a detriment to the defense program have been laid before them.

A FEW of these reasons can be listed: 1. It could not be effective before two and a half years, by which time, probably, the increased production would be a liability rather than an asset; 2. it would cost about $1,250,000,000; 3. it would require about 4,250,000 tons of steel for construction which steel would be urgently needed now; 4. it would require a vast army of toolmakers, machinists, boiler-makers and mechanics of all kinds, all of whom are required in the defense work; 5. if necessary after the war, which is doubtful, this steel expansion could be done cheaper and better and would create a cushion for post-war unemployment; 6. it would require the employment of a large number of skilled workmen, who simply are not available unless taken off defense jobs.

THESE are some of the points made against the proposed steel expansion program. There are others, but these would appear enough to establish the fact that the idea has not been well conceived and that the consequences of the expansion have not been understood. They would also seem to justify the assertion that the defense organization is still operating on the theory that "business as usual" is not incompatible with the "unlimited emergency." Until that idea is abandoned, the answer to the two questions asked at the beginning of this column will continue emphatically to be "No."

Threats Fail To Impress U. S.

By KINGSBURY SMITH
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Under Secretary of State Sumner Welles today warned Germany that the American people have never been impressed by bluster or threats.

Welles issued this warning in connection with the German threat that any other American ship caught carrying contraband on the high seas is likely to be sunk in the same manner as the Robin Moor.

The under secretary said he thought that the only thing necessary for him to say in reply to that threat was that "throughout the history of the people of the United States they never have been impressed by what they regard as bluster or threat."

Suspend Ten Union Members For Strike Act

(International News Service)
NEWARK, N. J., June 14.—Ten members of Local 365 CIO United Automobile Workers Union, who allegedly were leaders of an illegal strike at the Long Island City plant of the Brewster Aeronautical Corporation, today were under suspension from the union and their jobs following a mass meeting of 1,500 union members who vehemently denounced Communism in the organization.

Officials of Local 365 said that the attempted purge was in accordance with the plan of the UAW national officers to rid the union of Communist influences in order to avert repetition of conditions that led to a strike at the North American Aviation company plant at Inglewood, Calif., last week. The Brewster firm is producing millions of dollars worth of airplanes for the U. S. Navy, Great Britain, and the Royal Netherlands Air Force.

By a vote of 794 to 64 the union members at the mass meeting approved suspension of the ten men.

The French say they will defend their colonies against attack by America or any other enemy. Wonder why they forget to mention Germany?

FRANKLIN'S LIGHTNING ROD

(International News Service)
PHILADELPHIA.—A lightning rod made by that pioneer expert on lightning, Benjamin Franklin, has been found on Old Swede's Church, built in 1700.

Workmen discovered the rod while repairing the roof of the historic edifice. An architect said it has the "distinct character" of Franklin's work and "undoubtedly is one of Franklin's earliest." It was the great American inventor and philosopher who conducted the famous kite experiment to determine that lightning is electricity.

STERLING SILVER
Sterling silver contains at least 925 parts by weight of silver in 1000 parts of alloy.

The reason aluminum is used so much for cooking utensils is the fact that it is very light, has high heat capacity, excellent heat conductivity, durability, and resistance to corrosion.

Dr. Dafoe's Column On The Quintuplets And The Care Of Your Children

(Copyright, 1941, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

BONE BREAKS MUST RECEIVE IMMEDIATE MEDICAL CARE

Children naturally will climb, and they will have falls; if you are spending the summer out in the country, you would be wise to find out something about how to care for breaks and sprains until medical help arrives.

A doctor usually likes to get a patient with a broken bone or a sprain to where he can have a look at it under the X-ray. Without it one can't always be sure an apparent sprain isn't accompanied by broken bones. When I couldn't get my patients to an X-ray, I simply treated most sprains as though there were breaks too.

Usually, however, when a break occurs in an arm or leg it doesn't require much diagnosis; it is quite apparent what is the matter. There probably is an angle in the normally straight limb. If it is a leg that is broken, the victim can't stand on it. If it is an arm, it cannot be moved. In severe cases, the jagged ends of the broken bone may be actually protruding through the flesh.

When there are broken bones to deal with, the best thing to do is leave the patient where he is until the doctor arrives. If this can't be done, then splints should be placed on the limb to hold it absolutely still while the trip is being made to the nearest medical aid.

A broom handle makes a very good splint, and usually there is one of these around. However, if no broom is available, any strong piece of wood three or four feet in length will do. If the stick is square with sharp edges, it should be bound first with newspapers or with cloth so it won't cut into the flesh.

Take this splint and bind it securely to the broken leg with three or four handkerchiefs. Don't tie it so tightly that circulation will be stopped, but see to it that the limb is kept from moving, for every move may aggravate the break, and make the setting more difficult.

Footwear for children today mostly takes the form of oxfords. This style maybe all right during most of the year, but in summer when they are in camp, romping around over rough ground, jumping out of trees and doing a bit of climbing, I advise the old-fashioned high shoe for it is quite easy under these circumstances, to turn an ankle, particularly if the child is wearing low shoes that give no support to the ankle.

Ordinarily, a sprained ankle occurs when a person steps on something that causes the foot to be turned in suddenly and unexpectedly. The body isn't ready for the sudden wrench, and it hasn't time to go with the foot. The muscles, tendons and ligaments on the outside are badly stretched or, in the case of bad sprains, torn loose altogether. When this happens, the ankle swells rapidly, and any weight put on the foot causes pain. People who have had both a sprain and a break will tell you that the former is the more painful of the two. I have no reason to doubt them.

First thing to do for a sprained ankle pending the arrival of a doctor is to bind it securely in adhesive tape, so as to relax the muscles that have been strained and torn.

Take a strip of half-inch or one-inch adhesive tape, about twenty inches long. Attach one end to the inside of the leg, four to six inches above the foot. Then bring the adhesive down, underneath the instep, around and up the outside of the leg, keeping the tape taut all the time. This should pull the ankle to the outside, and relax those strained, injured tendons. Three more strips of adhesive, the same size, should be applied the same way. Then three smaller strips should be put around the leg, to bind the long strips and keep them from slipping.

In the morning the men will receive holy communion in their respective churches, before attending the grand communion breakfast at the Cathedral. Serving will start promptly at 9:30 o'clock, and includes a delicious menu prepared for the occasion.

According to the final reports made, a large attendance is expected to enjoy the breakfast and to hear Rev. Fr. A. W. Forney, spiritual director of the Holy Name society of the Pittsburgh diocese, the speaker scheduled for this event.

In times such as are prevalent in the world today, men of the Knights of Columbus, Ecclesian club organizations and all the Holy Name societies of the Catholic churches, are sponsoring this Catholic Action Day for Peace, and are uniting for this worthy cause.

A SUGGESTION!

To Help Us Help You to Better Service and Even Greater Savings

If you are accustomed to doing your regular weekly shopping in an A&P Super Market, you have no doubt noticed that Friday and Saturday the clerical force is taxed to the utmost, trying to give you the kind of efficient service A&P wants you to have. Many times during these two days the buying becomes so heavy that the clerical force is overtaxed, creating congestion at the check-out counters, but, when consideration is given to the fact that sixty per cent of the huge volume of A&P business is done during these two days it is little wonder that periods of delay will be experienced by some customers in having their purchases checked. To overcome these congestion periods and consequential delays, A&P would like to suggest to those customers that can conveniently do so, to shop early in the week and early in the day. By doing so, they will obtain better service for themselves and at the same time enable us to give better service during the peak periods of shopping activity. But, no matter upon what day or what time of day you visit our A&P Super Market, you can be assured that everything possible shall be done to make your visit both enjoyable and profitable.

Jarosik Meets Huff Monday

Moran, Arkett, Baby Face Leasure And Gardner To Box

HARD TRAINING COMES TO END

Steve Jarosik, Pittsburgh, who captured the 1940 Diamond Belt light-heavyweight title and Willie Huff, challenger from Clairton, are reportedly in fine condition for their three round battle in the air-cooled Arena Monday night. There will be seven other three-round bouts, the first of which will begin at 8:30 p. m.

Trainers for Jarosik and Huff notified Jefferson A. C. boxing officials that they have instructed their charges to cut out boxing tomorrow and go through only light exercises. On Monday the fighters will participate in a short stroll and arrive here several hours before the bouts are scheduled to start.

Jarosik's appearance here previously resulted in his winning a decision over the wallowing Mickie Rubin who was banned from amateur ranks after he had appeared in a professional battle in Youngstown. Huff hopes to win from Jarosik. If he does he will be a welcome addition to the local fight circuit.

Broken Comes Back
The semi-final will find Frankie Moran of this city opposed to Jimmie Brown of Clairton at 135. It will be Moran's first bout in some time. Charlie Arkett, another local lad, will battle Willie Booker also of Clairton at 147. Both are rugged, good punchers and can assimilate punishment.

Johnny Gardner also of this city will appear. He has been signed to box Harry Burnett of Warren, O., at 140. Gardner is one of the newer crop of amateurs.

Baby Face Leasure will be the fourth local lad to battle. His opponent will be Del Haight of Canonsburg at 130.

With Jarosik a tournament champion, Huff, Moran, Gardner, the Baby Face and Leasure on the card there should be an incentive to attract local followers.

Tommy Broken of Warren who fought Carl Jones will meet Augie Harrisin, Canonsburg at 147. Carl De John, Canonsburg will oppose Andy Harrisin, Clairton at 126 and Billy Harrisin, Canonsburg, will box Lloyd McKain of Warren at 126. The bouts have been sanctioned by the P. A. C. and A. A. U.

Airmen's Choice

Janice Robinson does things in a big way. Posing prettily at Tahiti Beach, Miami, she wears on different ratings of the nearby Opa Locka Naval Air Station. Among them are signalmen, aerial photographers, master mechanics and gunnery experts.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS LAND

Three of the nation's top-flight golfers were tied at the end of the first day of the Mahoning Valley Open championship at the Mahoning Valley Country club near Girard. They are Byron Nelson, Lawson Little and Ben Hogan, each with a 67. Clayton Heathner was next up with a 68.

David and Colonel Hatfield ran a dead heat yesterday at Wheeling Downs. Harvard is favored to beat Yale in the seventy-ninth annual row at New London, Conn. When Babe Phelps, Brooklyn catcher, failed to travel with the Dodgers to St. Louis this left him in for a $500 fine. Alvah H. Pierce, Brookline, Mass., has been crowned the National Senior Golf champion.

Patty Berg, Minneapolis, reached the finals of the Western Women's Golf finals at Cincinnati and today will play Mrs. Burt Well, Cincinnati housewife. Betting yet continues to make Louis a top favorite over Billy Conn, Wednesday, in New York. Bob Feller will spend $1000 a year on four collegiate scholarships.

Hillsville At Bessemer Sunday

With the Lawrence County baseball league race perking up there is indication there'll be crowded sidelines at 3 p. m. Sunday when Hillsville plays Bessemer at Bessemer. Hillsville already has furnished upsets and hopes to take the measure of their neighbor.

Manager Danny DeGenova said today that he would shove his ace Lefty Tonsette at the Elders and Manager Joe O'Leary will counter with either Witherow or Faller. It should be an interesting battle all the way.

The league leading Lawrence Indies will have the Moose team as their opponents at the Cedar street field. The Croton A. C. team will go to Lee avenue for a contest with up and coming young West Side team and will face Stewart or Bechtel.

Notes picked up in between rain-drops:

Rain drops the size of half dollars were descending upon us with a stinging thud. Knowing enough to step out of the rain, we hurried for the marquee of a show house. An old friend was puffing away at his favorite pipe and looking skyward. The gent was Phil H. Bridenbaugh. New Castle high's generalissimo.

For the next half hour, we chewed the fat about one sport and then another. "Bridy" was asked to chance a guess on the coming Louis-Conn outing and offered: "Personally, I can't see how anybody can lick Louis. To me, it doesn't seem sensible. If Conn is everything they say he is, he may have a chance. He has speed, something I like in football."

As a change of pace, we asked about prospects for next season. "Why bring up such a topic, especially during vacation days?" "Bridy" remarked laughingly. "With only Scarazzo, Lee and Parou back from last season's team, you don't have to be an Einstein to figure out how black the future is," the coach said.

What will New Castle High do if Uncle Sam decides to shut off the mazzas on night football clashes? "We'll simply have to go back to day games. The attendance, no doubt, will drop off considerably. Football fans, around here at least, like their football at night." The genial mentor continued as he puffed away.

We were just commencing to get closer, prepared to discuss the "T" formation, the advantages of having a streamlined flute player on the band and some of the other intricacies of football when a young

As of today, three major league pitchers still sport unblemished records. Krist, of the St. Louis Cards, has won five battles. Nahem, of the same team, has bagged four triumphs while Riddle, of Cincinnati, notched a quartet of wins.

NONE UNDEFEATED

While the National League has three undefeated pitchers, the American League can't even boast of one pegger who hasn't tasted defeat.

Start Work On Concrete Floor At Armory Hall

Improvements Are To Be Made At Cunningham Armory On East Side

Work has commenced by the Dunlap company on the preparations for putting in a concrete floor, in the "riding hall" at the Cunningham Armory, near Cascade Park.

The floor is of earth and was well packed down, suitable for the use of drilling by the Cavalry of Troop K.

Since the change about a year ago, of the organization from cavalry to Battery F, 190th Field Artillery, the horses were shipped away for the use of other cavalry units.

For the manipulation of heavy artillery, and possibly tanks in the future, it was decided to put in a floor of concrete.

After the floor had been loosened up somewhat by a power machine, workmen are taking off about five inches of earth.

The floor will be of reinforced concrete, ten inch thickness, in blocks of about 25 feet square, with expansion joints.

Drains will be set in, for cleaning of the floor.

The two large truss steel doors will be changed. At present the doors are of the upward tilting variety; these will be replaced with doors that will slide upward, thus giving the entrance more clearing space. There being no more need of protection for horses and cavalrymen, the "kneeboards" have been removed from the side walls.

Umpires Assigned For Sunday Games

The following umpires will handle the City baseball loop games, also the Lawrence County league games on Sunday:

At Lee avenue—Adams and A. Price.

At Marshall field—Ben Price and Orlando.

At Ryantown—General and Castelle.

At Cedar street—Smolnik and Stevenson.

County League Game

At Bessemer—Mehalic and Tex Richards.

INJURED, PLAYS ON

Swimming Popular
At Y. W. C. A. Camp

Well, the second period at Camp East Brook is full, chock full. If the first and third periods take a spurt like the second one did, they'll soon be full, too.

The first period is for girls 8 to 12 years of age and this is a fine chance for girls this age to learn to swim. Better swimming teachers than Miss Margaret and Miss Louise cannot be found anywhere. And this past winter Miss Margaret became a Red Cross examiner, so now she'll be able to sign all the swimmers cards herself. All former campers will realize what it means to have Miss Margaret's own signature on their cards.

Last year, the girls who were afraid of the water learned to float, the girls who floated learned to swim, and after that came the diving, way down into depths of water lying cool and inviting in the shaded cement pool.

Swimming at Camp East Brook is safe for a good many reasons. First, a cement pool possesses none of the treacherous rocks or holes of creeks or rivers. Second, there is always splendid supervision, during instruction periods and also during plunge periods. Third, Mr. "Fixit" fixes the water, too. Before every swim period he starts the machinery that chlorinates the water and kills all the germs. Fourth, it is doubly sure that all is safe, Miss Margaret then carries down the little test tubes and tests the water before even one girl is allowed in. Fifth, before entering, each girl must rinse her feet in a disinfecting foot bath. Sixth, no one with a skin affliction may swim.

Camp East Brook is one of the best places around to swim, for both beginners and advanced. If girls are between 8 and 12 years old, don't wait like many older girls did and then found the second period filled to capacity. The registration fee holds a place for you.

Second Period Roster Is Full; Vacancies In First And Third Periods
